Anemia associated with thymoma: an immunohistochemical and ultrastructural study. Thymomas are usually thought to arise from the thymic epithelium and to be lymphocyte-free. The present study evaluated the presence of lymphocytes in thymomas. Two thirds of 12 thymomas showed lymphocyte infiltration into the tumor. Some thymomas showed scattered B and T cells infiltrating the thymic stroma. The distribution of infiltrating lymphocytes varied from diffuse to focal. The infiltration of T cells was most extensive in the cortical region, and B cells were found mainly in the medullary region. Ultrastructural study revealed that most thymomas were lymphocyte-free, whereas a few showed lymphocyte-rich areas with T cells, which were characterized by a rudimentary epithelial-like cell lining. Epithelial cells in lymphocyte-rich areas had cytoplasm with abundant rough endoplasmic reticulum, a reduced number of Golgi apparatus, and less dense and unevenly distributed cytoplasmic filaments. These epithelial cells also showed less dense and unevenly distributed cytoplasmic filaments with the presence of some naked nuclei. In some areas, epithelial cells were characterized by an irregular cell lining and an increased cytoplasm with electron-dense bodies. The present study indicated that thymoma contained lymphocytes in a variable degree and showed variable histologic features, including areas that were lymphocyte-rich.
Q: Why does Deftrous backflip on Captured Aircraft and take it? In the Incursion, to the south of the capital city, when you crash an aircraft, Deftrous flies over to it, looks in the cockpit and backflips. What is he doing? I thought it was just a glitch (since there were no enemy players around), but maybe it was on purpose, and he is actually taking the aircraft. Did I miss something? A: As of today it is still a glitch. He appears to be in the cockpit inspecting the crashed aircraft, not taking control of it. From: From this video, you can see that 4bc0debe42
